

Court Sentences Mrs. Carothers To San Quentin

LAW REQUIRES TERM OF ONE TO TEN YEARS

Standing before the bar of justice with pallid face and downcast eyes, Mrs. Tressa Carothers, 30, of 200 South Ross street, Santa Ana, former assistant secretary of the Orange Building and Loan association, and an expectant mother, heard the sentence of Judge James L. Allen in department two of superior court today. The sentence means that she is to serve a term of one to 10 years in San Quentin prison for grand theft. At either side of her during the court proceedings today sat her husband, Charles Carothers, and her widowed mother, Mrs. Harry Strickland, of Orange.

The sentence followed action of the court last Friday in denying probation following a hearing on this matter after the accused woman had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of grand theft. She had falsified accounts, according to an audit made of the association records, and taken an amount totaling $10,981.60 over a period of approximately a year prior to her arrest on August 12, after an investigation by Ozman Pixley, secretary, revealed that there were irregularities in her accounts.

Before pronouncing sentence, Judge Allen stated at length his reasons for refusing to grant probation in the matter, asserting that he had gone over the files thoroughly and had listened attentively to the probation hearing, but that the facts did not warrant granting probation.

"One of the things that is tearing down the morale of this nation is the abuse of the probation law," he asserted. "The legislature adopted that law only for use where there are extenuating circumstances, and there are none whatever in this case. There is no law on the statute books more abused than this one. I sympathize with the defendant, but I am here to fulfill my oath of office and administer justice."

Judge Allen then quoted at length from a list of expenditures of the money obtained by the defendant, showing that she had spent in the period of a year consisted of some shares of stock in a dark gray suit trimmed in white and wore a small close fitting black hat. She carried a black leather bag under her arm.

Coming into the court from the jail an attempt was made to photograph the defendant, but she shielded her face with a copy of a newspaper and her husband walked in front of her and several times directly into the camera.

The convicted woman told probation department authorities that she committed the crime in order to give her mother things she wanted her to have and so her mother wouldn't have to work in the packing house.

She has paid back $684 of a loss of $1117 that the loan company faced as a result of defalcations in excess of the amount of her bond, which was $2000 prior to January 22, when in accordance with state requirements it was increased to $10,000. The payments she made to her mother amounted to $2965.34 and to her sisters $875.90.

But—if you keep the machine locked—the chance of it being stolen is almost negligible.

These facts were based on figures presented by Capt. Bernard McDonald, of the automobile detail of the San Francisco police department. During the last fiscal year 4913 cars were reported stolen, or about one twenty-fifth of the total number registered to San Francisco owners.

Of this number 4,868 were recovered, leaving only 45 machines missing, or approximately one hundredth of the total stolen.

A total of 359 cars stolen outside of San Francisco were recovered here while 314 cars stolen here were found outside the city.

Nearly 300 less automobiles were reported stolen during the last fiscal year than in the previous year.

Decrease in auto thefts, Capt. McDonald believes, is the result of the campaign conducted by the department to encourage all car owners to keep their machines, when not in use, locked.

"Few locked cars are bothered by thieves," declared Capt. McDonald. "They usually pick on machines which are easily accessible and in which the engines still are hot."

THEATERS "IN RED"
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—(UPI)—The Henry Duffy theaters went $23,967.50 further "in the red" while operating for a brief period under a receivership, a report to creditors showed today.

Receiver G. A. Blanchard showed that between May 17 to July 1, while he was operating the coast-wide chain of theaters, operating expenditures were $23,967.50 in excess of revenue.

FEAR DISABLED PLANE CRASHED IN MOUNTAINS

Mystery surrounds the unexplained disappearance of an unidentified airplane, reported to have been in trouble late yesterday afternoon while flying over the hills of Santiago canyon, and then believed to have crashed in one of the many secluded canyons.

Following a report of the forest ranger of the lookout station in Santing canyon that he had seen an airplane in trouble disappear in the hills, and that it apparently had failed to come out, a searching party, headed by Deputy Sheriff Harry Carter and Assistant Jailer W. Hunter Leach, explored the canyon without result.

The ranger reported seeing the ship, a white monoplane, flying low with engine sputtering and missing badly. Then the engine failed entirely. The ranger said that the plane was too low to negotiate the mountain tops, apparently between Silverado and Black Star canyons, where no landing place is available.

The searchers from Santa Ana, which included Deputy Sheriff Joe Thorhill and State Motor Traffic Officers Dan Adams and Ole Buer, traveled up Black Star canyon 15 miles without seeing fire or any trace of a plane.

This afternoon arrangements were being made at Eddie Martin's airport to send a plane over the mountain region with view to scanning the ground for any possible sign of a wreck.

Decrease in auto thefts, Capt. McDonald believes, is the result of the campaign conducted by the department to encourage all car owners to keep their machines, when not in use, locked.

"Few locked cars are bothered by thieves," declared Capt. McDonald. "They usually pick on machines which are easily accessible and in which the engines still are hot."

NURSERYMAN TALKS TO EXCHANGE CLUB

Members of the Exchange club meeting at the Santa Ana cafe, today heard a discussion of root stock and budding of citrus fruits by Fred May, Orange county nurseryman. May explained the steps in building up sturdy trees that produce the highest grade fruit. He also said it was his conviction that there was not enough available land in Orange county to cause an overproduction in the Valencia orange industry. People from all over the world come to Southern California for trees and buds of the California Valencia, but do not have the climatic or other conditions necessary to the production of a similar grade fruit, he asserted.

Dr. John Wehrly, chairman of the program committee, declared that orange consumption would be even greater in the future than it is today, as doctors and dentists are discovering that this fruit contains essential food qualities.

In this connection it was pointed out that in some eastern cities companies are now delivering fresh bottled orange juice every morning along with milk deliveries.

Music was furnished by Paul LeBar, pianist.

Lowest fares east ever offered end September 30. Chicago only $47.50, choice of routes. For any trip see Southern Pacific agents, M. J. Logue, Phone 268, or S. W. Sala, Phone 278.

MILTON SILLS, MOVIE ACTOR, DIES SUDDENLY

Registration was still under way today in the schools of Santa Ana and totals of yesterday were being increased all along the line.

At the high school, although no definite figures were available, it was announced that the total is approaching 900. The loss of approximately 150 students to the new Newport Harbor high school will cut down the registration materially but it is thought that a number of students from other areas, now working, will report within a few days.

Sills was in excellent spirits and apparently in good health when he began the tennis game. He had not been working for some time owing to his heart trouble, but it was believed he was recovering rapidly.

He had just completed "The Sea Wolf," his second talking picture and the third time this Jack London story has been brought to the screen. Friends declared that the strain of this role undoubtedly had its effects upon Sills.

Sills and Miss Kenyon married in October, 1926, a short time after he was divorced by Gladys Edith Wynne, whom he wed in London in 1910. Dorothy, now 18, was a child of the first marriage. His romance with Miss Kenyon attracted wide attention at the time because of the divorce suit in progress against him and the fact that he and Miss Kenyon were working on the First National lot.

Miss Kenyon became ill shortly after the marriage and Sills took her in a special train to the Adirondacks to recover. He also was taken ill, and the first of his retirements was necessary.

Sills was born in Chicago January 12, 1892, and was educated in that city. He graduated from the University of Chicago in 1903 and for two years held a fellowship in philosophy.

He had not trained for a stage career but early in life decided his talents lay in that direction. Motion pictures were in their infancy and doubtless the future idol never gave them a thought. He made his professional debut in New Palestine, O., as the leading man in "Dora Thorne."

Later Belasco, the Shuberts, Frohman and Brady recognized his talents and featured Sills in New York and other eastern productions.

Motion pictures attracted Sills in 1914. His first picture was in Frank Norris' story of Chicago wheat, "The Pit." He rose to stellar heights in a short time and was once paid a $7500 a week, a record for that period.

Sills reached his greatest heights in the silent films, among his best being "The Sea Hawk" and "Men of Steel." His health was failing at the time sound pictures turned Hollywood topsy turvy and he remained out of work several months. His first talkie, "The Barker," was followed by his last, "The Sea Wolf."

Sills, a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon at Chicago, the Lambs and Players clubs in New York and other organizations, never lost interest in educational work. He was a prominent member of the motion picture Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Sills' death was the second among Hollywood's notables in the last month. Lon Chaney, foremost of the character actors, died in August from a throat hemorrhage.

Funeral arrangements for Sills were being made today.

Council Orders Improvements On Placentia Streets

PLACENTIA, Sept. 16.—Placentia councilmen gave consideration to needed street work at the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce hall Monday evening, and ordered Street Superintendent Gus Barnes to have all small repairs taken care of, and to have a school sign painted on all sides of the Chapman and Bradford street intersection. He is to make an estimate on two large jobs, that of completing the stretch of paving on Santa Fe street and resurfacing Orange Grove. The latter will require discing, to incorporate the heavy oiled surface with the ground, and will be finished with a surfacing of gravel.

The first reading was given city ordinance No. 37, which provides that the city taxes shall be due at the time set by the state laws.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

The pioneer in any field of science or in the arts is never completely understood by the people of his day. With progress in thought and a wider experience, subsequent generations catch the spirit of the great prophet and reap the inspiration and the writings to which he opened the way.

The assurance which Jesus brought to man of a dynamic life, persisting beyond the grave has become increasingly real and powerful as the years have passed.

You understand your ancestors yearned to know, that your dear ones in Paradise live triumphantly and joyously and that your reunion with them is assured.

NOWLAN—At her home, 502 Fruit Street, September 16, 1930. Estella L. Nowlan, age 41 years. She is survived by her husband, Andrew L. Nowlan, her father, Mr. J. B. ANOTHER CHANCE TO LEARN OF HYGIENE AND THE HOME

(Announcing study groups being organized by the adult department of the Santa Ana high school and some of the reading material that is available at the city library.)

Hygiene as it affects the health, happiness and success of each member of the home will be the objective of a course which will be offered by the department of Adult Education, with Miss Marie A. Jacobson as instructor. Miss Jacobson is especially anxious for mothers of high school girls to enroll to the end of building a better understanding between mothers and daughters. However, the course is not limited to such mothers but is open to all women who are interested.

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Sept. 16.—George Clough, manager of the Pedro Luster company stores here, and Mrs. Clough and their young son left Monday morning to drive to Oakland where they are spending a week with Mr. Clough's relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Renhall entered Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Price of Midway City, at dinner Sunday.

On Friday a group of 26 motored to Los Angeles for an excursion through one of the large stores.

Those going from here were Mrs. R. E. Larter, Mrs. W. B. McCoy, Miss Helen McCoy, Mrs. Orville Day, Mrs. Charles Parr, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Murdy, Mr. and Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Reuben Edwards, Mrs. J. P. Peterson, Mrs. Merle Rhea, Mrs. A. N. Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Hilburn, Mrs. M. J. Brea, $16,000; Adolf G. Schmidt, Santa Ana, $15,450; O. T. Moore, Santa Ana, $14,900; E. S. McKittrick, Huntington Park, $16,240.

The successful bidder on the 400 foot well at Buena Park was Russell L. Thompson, of Fullerton, who was awarded the contract at a price of $2200. Other bids for this work were B. E. Proctor, Long Beach, $2240; Rennie Brothers, Cypress, $3150; and A. B. Lassiter, $2400.

A premium of $111.50 was offered in the only bid received on six per cent bonds of the Westminster water works district, by G. W. Bond and Son, of Santa Ana. The sale of the bonds, totaling $31,629.60, was awarded to the bidder by the board.

The other bids opened covered tires and tubes for the county fleet of autos and trucks during the ensuing year. Eleven bids were received and were referred to the purchasing department for checking. The report is to be made next Tuesday on this matter.

A petition for repairs to the Trabuco canyon road, which was filed with the board by the Trabuco Canyon Cabin Owners' association, was referred to the road department for action.

During the absence of County Clerk J. M. Backs, who is taking his first vacation in five years, Deputy Clerk Earl Abbey acted as clerk of the board at its session today.

Robert Phipps, who returned Friday from Long Beach, where he has been at the home of a sister since his release from the Seaside hospital following a shooting accident in which he was injured on Labor day, is steadily convalescing from the number of wounds which he sustained.

JUDGMENT AGAINST BANK IS RETURNED

Trial of Lawsuit Over Finger Loss Under Way Today

Judgment for $234.96 was returned for the plaintiff yesterday afternoon by Judge G. K. Scovell at the conclusion of the trial of the damage action filed by J. D. Carter, former Pasadena cleaner and dyer, against the Citizens bank of Laguna Beach.

Carter had sued for a total of $100,234.96, of which the $100,000 was for alleged damages he sustained as a result of the bank returning a check for $32 when, according to his testimony, he had an ample balance in the account to cover the check. It was alleged that the other sum was for a debit the bank had charged against his account without his authority or knowledge.

Young Henry was injured while operating a machine in the manual training shop of the school on March 17, 1930, and it is alleged that the injury was the result of neglect in the maintenance and care of the machine by the school authorities.

Deputy District Attorneys W. F. Menton and Preston Turner are conducting the defense.

Only Five Weeks Left For Coast League Baseball

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—(UPI)—Only five more weeks remain of Pacific coast league baseball.

Hollywood starts off the final lap with a six and one-half game lead over its nearest competitor, Los Angeles, and almost 10 games ahead of San Francisco in third place.

In the series starting today the Sheiks meet the Seals, who lost six of the eight games played with the Missions last week at San Francisco.

In the other series of the week, Portland plays at Seattle, Oakland at Sacramento and the Missions at Los Angeles.

Court Notes

A complaint for foreclosure of a mechanic's lien on property in Superior court by the Ganahl-Grim Lumber company, of Anaheim, against Burt D. Tandy et al.

Judgment is asked for $106.15 alleged to be due and unpaid for materials furnished in the construction of a building.

Inventory and appraisal of the estate of Mae Reeve was filed today with County Clerk J. M. Backs, showing value of $110,85. The assets consist principally of real estate.

Nancy Slaven has filed suit for divorce from Fred M. Slaven charging habitual intemperance and extreme cruelty. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant struck and cursed her on numerous occasions.

Judgment of $1540.95, which it is alleged is due and unpaid on an open book account, is asked in a complaint filed in superior court by Isaac H. Pennington against Willis Renfrow et al.

Inventory and appraisal of the estate of Belle Price Alderman, which has been filed with County Clerk J. M. Backs, fixes a value of $31,812.80 on the estate. It consists principally of cash, real estate and notes.

The First Trust and Savings bank, of Pasadena, brought suit against the Balboa Palisades club et al. in superior court yesterday, asking judgment for $5000, which it is alleged is the balance due on a $50,000 note. The money was loaned in 1926, according to the complaint, which said the last payment was made on Sept. 8, 1930.

Suit for divorce from Charles M.

Smith has been filed in superior court by Minnie C. Smith. They were married Dec. 23, 1907, in Sioux City, Ia., and separated July 17, 1929. The plaintiff makes charges of extreme cruelty and desertion and asks payment of $100 per month for support.

N. B. Ghosson, charged with grand theft, left the court room of Justice Morrison as a free man this morning, following the dismissal of a complaint filed against him having stolen a roadster belonging to R. E. Buster. He was defended by Attorney O. A. Jacobs.

Both Iowa Captains Are Ineligible

IOWA CITY, Ia., Sept. 16.—(UPI)—Neither of the two captains elected by the University of Iowa grid team to lead the 1930 team will be in suit when Coach Burton A. Ingwersen assembles his squad, scarred by graduation and ineligibility on September 15.

The leaderless status of the Hawkeyes developed last month when captain-elect Marcus Magnusson was denied further competition. The general "house-cleaning" earlier in the year barred Mike Farrol, fullback and co-captain, because of borrowing from the Belling fund.

Ingwersen has nine major letter winners available.

CAMP WELL AT H. B. MAY BE ABANDONED

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Sept. 16.—There is little important development to report in the field here this week. The Superior Oil company's deep test is drilling ahead around 5000 feet on Twenty-first street between Walnut and Ocean. The McCasland well, a deep test at Twenty-first and Olive, is drilling ahead at near 6000 feet.

The Camp Oil company W. T. Newland test, which is fishing at 5000 feet, is likely to be abandoned. This well has been expensive drilling and the operators have not felt that at any time there was sufficient showing to warrant production test. Mr. Camp stated that the well only proves the territory to a depth of 5000 feet and in no sense can it be considered as an indication of what may be below 5000 feet.

As the deep sands at Signal Hill and most other California fields are below 6000 feet, the question of deep sand at Huntington Beach is still unanswered.

The Superior Oil company ran a survey on their deep test on Twenty-first street this week and found the hole straight and in fine shape. Superior has announced that this well will go below 7000 feet unless satisfactory production is found at a shallower depth.

the furnishing of her home. She will no longer need to purchase this or that piece of furniture blindly and hope it will add to her home the elusive beauty she so desires. She may know exactly what she is doing and just what the result of the use of certain furnishings will be.

SPEAKER TELLS ABOUT BEAUTY OF NORTH LAND

That the beauty of Norway, famous Land of the Midnight Sun, could not be over-emphasized, was the opinion expressed by Mrs. Sam W. Nau, one of Santa Ana's most widely traveled women, who yesterday gave her third travel talk before members of the Business and Professional Women's club. Mrs. Nau is one of the most popular speakers ever entertained by the club at its weekly luncheons in St. Ann's Inn, and members are united in feeling that her travel talks give them a clearer view of the various countries described, and a more intimate knowledge of their peoples, than any ever given before them.

Her experiences during the past summer, when, with Mr. Nau and Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Boyer, she followed a trip to Oberammergau and the Passion Play, with a tour of Germany and Czechoslovakia as well as Sweden and Norway, were depicted lightly. The Santa Anans went as far as North Cape, and Mrs. Nau's description of the forbidding ramparts of rock which soar into the air 1000 feet, was a graphic one. They were fortunate in having one clear day out of the four which they devoted to this section, so their view was unobstructed—a piece of good fortune that some travelers miss.

But it was not her fluent descriptions of the beauties of the north country and the stately cities, alone that made her talk so interesting. It was her own reactions to the various lands visited, the little intricate descriptions, and in the comparisons drawn between different cities and countries, that added charm was given. For instance she dwelt upon the apparent happiness and well-being of the inhabitants of Norway and Sweden, and stated that she could not help but feel that it was because they had kept out of war. Or again, when she explained that in that northern land of week after week of sunshine, they have to build special darkened buildings for their fowls so that there is an artificial night for them, a homely little fact whose amusing phase had a basis of sheer common sense.

Clubwomen were interested in Mrs. Nau's opinions of the Passion Play, which she declared to be one of the most spiritually beautiful things she ever had witnessed. That it was becoming capitalized to a certain extent, she did not deny, but stated that even if a large transportation company evidently had put itself back of the great pageant, it had only done a wonderful thing in urging more people to see it and let such an experience come into their lives.

Many pictures and some exquisite examples of Swedish and Norwegian weaving, embroidery, lace and metal work, were shown after the interesting talk.

In addition to the program feature, Mrs. Hazel Northcross, president, gave a brief account of her experiences at the state convention at Asilomar, speaking in the humorous vein that makes her reports doubly interesting. Among matters which she discussed, was a talk on "Minding Our Business" by Miss Zoe Clements, in which it was brought out that Business and Professional women needed to be represented at Sacramento, in order to safeguard women's interests.

EL MODENA

EL MODENA, Sept. 16.—Elmer Bogart, of Hemet, has been spending a week with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stone, and his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Meler, of East Chapman avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Stone and their guest attended the fair at Pomona Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Hodson made a business trip to Pomona recently. Mr. and Mrs. George Dillard and children spent Tuesday with the Sam Stone and Bert Fox families.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Barnett and family, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Haines and family, of Orange, spent a day recently at Escondido.

Mothers Are Learning Uses of Magnesia

From the beginning of expectancy until baby is weaned, that's the time Phillips Milk of Magnesia performs the greatest service for many women.

It relieves the expectant mother's nausea, heartburn, "morning sickness," inclination to vomit; helps her digestion. It's mild but effective laxative; assures regular bowel movement.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia is better than lime water for neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding. A teaspoonful of it does the work of a half pint of lime water. It is a mild laxative; harmless, almost tasteless.

All drug stores have Phillips Milk of Magnesia in generous 25c and 50c bottles. Always insist on the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

Late News From Orange County Communities

Two Groins Authorized For Balboa Peninsula

BOARD ORDERS BEACH WORK TO COST $1715.60

ANAHEIM, Sept. 16.—"Responsibility of a Rotarian to His Community" was the subject chosen by George W. Reid, secretary of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce, in an address before the members of the Rotary club yesterday noon at their regular meeting at the Elks Club.

URGING the Rotarians to take some definite action on the water problem that confronts Orange county and southern California, Reid declared that the water supply from Boulder dam would not be sufficient to meet the demands of the rapidly growing country. Reid urged that something be done at once to refill the underground channels.

Reid outlined briefly the Manchester road project and the Imperial Valley-Redondo Beach highway project, stressing their value to the county, favoring the use of La Palma street through Anaheim for the latter highway.

The speaker touched briefly on the needs of North East street to make it of service to traffic.

Plans were also approved for the opening of a new street from Thirty-seventh street, west, and for widening of an alley now extending from Thirty-sixth to Thirty-seventh street. The whole work will be done under the same proceeding and will mean a new thoroughfare parallel with the Pacific Electric tracks and the ocean west of Thirty-sixth.

The council decided to ask the county supervisors to meet jointly at a time convenient to the county board regarding the proposed over-head crossing at the intersection of the Coast highway and Newport boulevard.

At the last previous meeting petitions were presented, signed by numerous property owners, asking that an assessment district be formed, consisting of Balboa, Newport as far west as Fortieth street, and Lido Isle, to pay for the city's share of the job. Under the plans, the state would pay $75,000 and the city and county $65,000 each.

S. L. Hoke, custodian of the municipal automobile camp on the bay front, between Fifteenth and Nineteenth street, resigned and his resignation was accepted. William Ulrich, former janitor of the grammar school, was appointed his successor, effective at the end of this month.

Ulrich's salary will be $150 per month in the summer season and $125 a month for the rest of the year. He will give his entire time to the city and when not needed at the automobile camp will be employed in the street department. Mayor Johnson voted no on this, the other four councilmen voting yes.

Decision as to whether the Irvine company or a syndicate of Corona del Mar property owners should purchase 21,000 cubic yards of sand to be dredged from the vicinity of Balboa Island was left by the council to the city engineer.

Both the Irvine company and the syndicate want to buy the sand to build up their beaches, both properties being in the city and adjoining each other. The syndicate, it was said, has already assessed its members for the purchase. City Engineer Patterson was authorized to make the best deal possible with one of the two possible buyers.

Mrs. Clarence G. White of Bay Island, wrote asking that she and others be given permission to plant palm trees at the Island avenue bridge leading from the East Newport mainland to Bay island. It was referred to the council's street committee.

Another announcement was of a social meeting of Mrs. Ingham's Sunday school class, to be held at her home Tuesday evening.

CAPISTRANO STREET IS BEING WIDENED

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Sept. 16.—County trucks and steam shovels are rushing the work of widening the streets. North Oriental street from the Broadway intersection has been widened to 56 feet, 40 feet from curb to curb, to the intersection of San Fernando. From there the full length of the high school grounds the street is 60 feet from curb to curb. Oil and gravel will be used for surfacing.

FAIL TO APPEAR

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Sept. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. W. A. White, of Capistrano Beach, who were arrested last week for selling liquor and were released by Judge Landell that they might attend the funeral of a nephew, failed to appear and the officers say they have left the country.

PROGRAM FOR RED CROSS AT L. B. ARRANGED

LAGUNA BEACH, Sept. 16.—With letters mailed to many chapters of the American National Red Cross in Southern California inviting attendance at the conference set for October 14 in this city, plans are under way for the program for that date. The meeting is an all-day one set for the day of the Camino.

Reid outlined briefly the Manchester road project and the Imperial Valley-Redondo Beach highway project, stressing their value to the county, favoring the use of La Palma street through Anaheim for the latter highway.

PROGRAM FOR RED CROSS AT L. B. ARRANGED

HUNTINGTON BEACH BOARD DELAYS ACTION ON WASTE WATER PLANT, OIL REFINERY

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Sept. 16.—The city council in adjourned session last night gave further consideration to the $175,000 compressor plant and waste water disposal plant the Superior Oil company desires to construct at Huntington Beach. The council asked through motion of Elson G. Conrad, seconded by Councilmen Chris King and E. B. Stevens, that the Superior Oil company file its statement of detailed plans.

Attorney Wagner of the Superior promised to comply with this request within the next few days, following which Mayor Bowen promised that immediately upon receipt of the detailed plans, he would call a special meeting of the city council to consider the application.

The tentative program which had been arranged for the regional conference is set to begin at 10 a.m. in the hotel, which William W. Riddell has allowed to be used for the conference. An address of welcome will be made, the response to be by J. Arthur Jeffers. At 11 o'clock a life-saving demonstration will be made by Harold P. Terwilliger, first aid and life saving field representation of the national organization, attached to the San Francisco headquarters.

M. J. Hughes, legal advisor, will talk at the 12:30 luncheon at the hotel on "The Red Cross, a National Organization with National Supervision." Mr. Hughes is from Washington, D. C. "Nutrition" is the subject of Miss Nina Crigler, director of nutrition of Los Angeles chapter at 2 o'clock. "Recent Changes in Veterans' Bureau Legislation" will be the topic of a talk by John Zydeman, Red Cross liaison representative, U. S. Veterans' Bureau, of Seattle. Miss Marianne King, assistant national director, public information and roll call of the Pacific branch, will talk on roll call at 3 o'clock. Volunteer service and Junior Red Cross also come up for discussion.

Athletic events will begin at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. There will be a series of baseball games and other sports. A golf tournament will be held on the links of the Long Beach Country club. There will be foot races for all ages as the picnic is planned for the families of employees and a number of children will attend.

Independent oil dealers here are protesting and asking that their protest be given publicity, relative to an increase of one cent a gallon in the retail price of gasoline and a cut of 10 cents a barrel in the price of crude oil. The independent oil dealers here charge that the reduction in the price of oil and the increase in the price of gasoline is beneficial only to the larger companies and companies that produce gasoline.

It is stated that 90 per cent of the independent operators dispose of their production as crude oil and are not refiners. They charge that cutting oil prices as proposed at this time is on the face of things, a direct attempt to injure the independents and put them out of business.

In support of this charge the independent dealers point out that the proposed cut in the price of oil does not or will not affect the following oil fields: Elwood, McKittrick, Kern River, Kettleman Hills and Newhall. These five fields are almost entirely controlled by the major companies.

In other fields where the independent operators have wells, oil prices are to be cut. If there are leases obtainable in the fields to be exempt from the cut in oil prices, the cut will have a tendency to increase development in those fields and decrease development in all other fields, including Huntington Beach.

Al Greer, Associated superintendent at Huntington Beach, is managing the picnic dinner. Dancing will be enjoyed at the beach pavilion from 2 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. There will be orchestra music for the dancers and a program of vocal and instrumental music will be given.

ORANGE, Sept. 16.—The Bible schools of the Santa Ana district of Christian churches was held in Fullerton yesterday all day and evening. The department superintendents from Orange who attended sessions were Mrs. Sadie Sweet, beginners' department; Mrs. C. C. Bonebrake, junior department; Mrs. Walter Kogler, intermediate department; Mrs. D. G. Wettil, high school department.

Teachers from Orange who attended were Mrs. Rebecca Pope, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Campbell, Mrs. Clara Vestal, Mrs. B. J. Fletcher and the Rev. P. M. McClure. The director of missionary education from Orange, Mrs. Ross Harlan, and the Rev. Franklin Minck were present.

The Rev. Mr. Minck presided at the sessions, Santa Ana, Whittier and Brea sent delegates. Mrs. Bertha Monroe, director of missionary education for the Christian churches of Southern California, presented the new approach to missionary education at the sessions.

Winifred Riddle And Linley Hall Marry In Orange

ORANGE, Sept. 16.—The home of Mrs. Carrie Riddle, 1045 East Palmyra street was the setting for the wedding of her daughter, Winifred Riddle, from the Torrance hospital, and Linley K. Hall, of Oklahoma City. The Rev. S. F. Samson, of Huntington Park, former pastor of the Methodist church in Orange, conducted the ceremony, using the single ring service.

Potted plants formed an archway and ferns, golden rods and marigolds furnished the color scheme of blue and gold. The bride was dressed in powder blue with over lace and carried yellow roses.

Miss Grace Moody played the wedding march and Miss Hazel Stinson of Santa Ana sang "In a Honeymoon."

The Misses Margaret Scott and Florence Moreland entertained

MEN OF LODGE GIVE PROGRAM MONDAY NIGHT

ORANGE, Sept. 16.—"Brothers' night," observed at the regular meeting of Rudy Rebekah Lodge of this city, was a most successful event last night, when men of the lodge assumed the responsibility of presenting a program and serving refreshments to women of the lodge.

Those in charge of the evening's entertainment were Purl Shell, E. G. Chandler, Fenn Field, Elmer Gullick, Earl Kuechel, Emil Roedig and Charles Neilson.

During a short business session it was announced that members of the Orange lodge would attend the district meeting of the Rebekah lodge at Santa Ana, September 27.

Mrs. Helen Kroemer presided at the meeting after which program was presented by students of the Visel studio.

Included in the program were two solo by Miss Katherine Bonham, who sang "Where My Campan Van Has Rested" and "The Last Rose of Summer." She was accompanied by Mrs. Luelia McGaffey. Miss Emma Williams gave two readings, "Archie" and "Mehitable."

Harriet Ann McGaffey and Miss Benham gave a Spanish dance and song and the entertainment was concluded by a chalk talk by Jim Redlands of Santa Ana.

50,000 INQUESTS

LONDON, Sept. 16.—Probably the oldest coroner in England is Sir Walter Schroder, who recently celebrated his 75th birthday. He has been a coroner for 50 years and during that time he estimates he has held 50,000 inquests. He has officiated at some of the most famous murders in England.

Eridge will furnish the diversion of the afternoon and the first party will be given October 13, the second, October 27, the third, November 10 and the fourth, November 24. The play will begin at 2:30 o'clock in order that members of the toastmasters' section, which meets on these dates may have an opportunity to finish their programs.

Mrs. C. E. Lush is the section president. Attractive prizes are to be given winners at each party.

New troop leaders are to be appointed soon and Mrs. Ernest Ross, Mrs. E. H. Smith and Miss Mabel Lush were selected as a committee to make the appointments. Each troop has two leaders.

Future meetings of the troops will be held in the city hall headquarters.

ORANGE, Sept. 16.—Four card parties are being planned by the second economics section of the Woman's club for October and November.

CAMPING TRIP PLANNED FOR ORANGE SCOUTS

ORANGE, Sept. 16.—More than 1500 employees of the packing plants connected with the Orange County Fruit Exchange are today enjoying a half day holiday from their work at Irvine Park. A picnic supper will be served this evening and games and contests were held this afternoon.

This is the first combined picnic to be held by the packing plants as in previous years each association staged its own outing. It is expected that the event will become an annual affair.

CHURCH EDUCATION LEADER IN ORANGE

ORANGE, Sept. 16.—Miss Esther Terry, religious education leader at the First Methodist church, arrived this week from Washington, D. C., where she graduated from the Washington University.

Previous to coming here, Miss Terry was director of religious education in the South Congregational church at Concord, New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Terry, parents of Miss Terry, will arrive soon in Orange from Pasadena.

SANTA ANA-COLTON IN DECIDING GAME

NEW HUNTINGTON BEACH GOLF COURSE TO OPEN ON SEPT. 20

The grand opening of the Huntington Beach Community golf course will be held at 10 a.m. September 20. This event will mark the culmination of one of the most worthwhile efforts of the community in years. Originally the idea of the golf course came from the local high school, and particularly from Fred Brooks as an assignment for the engineering class.

The project grew too large for the high school to carry alone and with the co-operation of business and professional men it developed into the community project now completed and to be opened with appropriate ceremonies. The following men deserve credit for this accomplishment: Fred Brooks, W. H. Thompson, S. R. Bowen, A. M. Anderson, Jack Robertson, H. S. Berkley, Fred Grable, A. W. Frost, John Africa, C. R. Furr and G. F. McElveen.

H. S. FOOTBALL SQUAD LARGEST IN MANY YEARS "2ND SECTION" DEER SEASON OPENS TODAY

Said to be the largest turnout in football history at the Santa Ana high school, 54 men have now checked out suits and are practicing under the eagle eye of Coach "Tex" Oliver, who directs the destinies of the Saints in the grid world.

With the opening of school yesterday, 10 more men enrolled for football. The new acquisitions were Daws Weber, guard; Miner Whitford, letterman at guard and center; James Danerl, reserve back for two years; Miles Norton, center; Zeno Shelley, tackle; Quimby Wallace, tackle; Lee Hamilton, guard; Floyd Epperly, guard; Earl Holderman, center and Frank Musselman, guard. With the exception of Danerl, each of these men is a linesman, which suits Oliver, who already has a very strong backfield.

Helmets were checked out to the grididers yesterday afternoon and a good hard scrimmage was the result. The first casualty of the season was brought to light when Paul Jacques, star high jumper and candidate for end, was confined to his bed with an infected knee. A small scratch sustained in practice last week became sore and now Jacques has a swollen knee and must stay in bed for several days.

Has Two Backfields

From the drills so far, it appears as if Coach Oliver has two backfields of virtually equal strength to use against the high class teams to be met this season, starting with the practice brush with Orange here on September 26. One combination of Alvin Reboin, Don Crumley, Harold Pangle and Davis Wynne would look sweet to any coach but with Allan Kidder, Max Wilson, Clyde Birdsong and quite a few others fighting to be included, prospects could be distinctly worse.

As for the forward wall, Oliver still has a task before him to get the paying holes left from graduation filled up. At ends, Floyd "Toy" Blower, sophomore sensation last year, Hideo Higashi, aggressive veteran and Gib Meisinger are outstanding with the first two having a slight bulge. At tackle, Bill Donahue and Lee Hoffmaster come first with Lawrence Lutz and Glenn Dallas Reichstein has one guard position to himself while Garth Olsen and Iard Runyan are fighting for the other. There are six or seven men trying for center, however, and some of these will probably be shifted over to guard. Miner Whitford and Walter Melott, both seasoned grididers, will probably fight it out for first honors while Roy Harvey, Joe Prelinger and Leonard Lockhart are not out of the running.

Married Football

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 16. (UPI)—Tulane university has a sophomore football player who is married, has one two-year-old son, and who intends to become a physician. His name is Nolle Felts.

Minter second. Donahue was reported tonight.

Dallas Reichstein has one guard position to himself while Garth Olsen and Iard Runyan are fighting for the other. There are six or seven men trying for center, however, and some of these will probably be shifted over to guard. The Other Bullet

By Nancy

Joe Lynn, found by Peter Piper, reporter, in the quarters of Mortison, murdered manager of the Everett ranch has just declared he shot Mortison. Lynn, Barbara and Alina Everett, who has been acquitted of the murder, watched the house after Alina has discovered someone has been searching it. Alina has been in touch with Mortison, but wishes to keep the fact from her husband, Max, and she is determined to recover her letters which the murderer is thought to have taken with him.

Peter has found that a ring belonging to Mortison on which was engraved a coat of arms, has been removed by a Chinese boy owned by the dead man. An old lady is found in the house and who is captured with Lynn declares Mortison is a witch and that he himself killed him by stealing the ring.

Peter has seen a ring bearing the description of Mortison's from a pawn shop to a lawyer, Fitzgerald, who received it from a burglar as a fee. The burglar, in panic, tells Peter that he took it from the finger of a man he went to rob and after robbing him, found him to be dead. The dead man was Jerome de la Montanya, son of Jerome, his chauffeur. Joe Lynn is sure of his story and of Jerome's innocence.

Peter is told that the ring was engraved on the dead man's hand by a Chinese boy owned by the dead man. An old lady is found in the house and who is captured with Lynn declares Mortison is a witch and that he himself killed him by stealing the ring.

"It was the old lady's will that set me to thinking," Lynn answered. "It was either Mr. Jerome's ghost that I saw—or somebody that looked just like him. I didn't think of that in time—but I'm not one to believe in a ghost unless I have to, only it looked as if it couldn't be anything else."

Peter nodded encouragingly.

"Then I got to figuring who else could look enough like Mr. Jerome to have fooled me. It came to me all of a sudden, when I read about the old lady's will, that we'd only Mr. Jerome's word for it that his brother was dead. I'd heard her say hundreds of times how much alike they looked, though they were so different inside. And I'd only had the one glimpse of the face, dim-like, across the hall and through the gap in the curtains.

"The old lady didn't quite believe that David was dead—see? Well, the more I thought of it, the more I didn't believe it either. Whoever came in and killed Mr. Jerome that night wasn't a stranger to him.

"There wasn't any ring at the door bell, and a burglar wouldn't have come into a lighted room. If he had, Mr. Jerome would have yelled—and the noise that woke me up that night wasn't any yell. I've tried and tried to think what it was, and so far as I can make out, it was a sort of thump—the sound of Mr. Jerome when he fell on the floor, most likely.

"There's just one man in the world that I could have seen in the mirror, besides Mr. Jerome himself, and that was his brother. Maybe I was right in the first place, and it was his ghost that I saw. But if David was still alive, I vowed that I'd find him—and I did."

"It was Mortison?" Peter asked quietly.

"Yes, I thought it was a piece of luck when I caught sight of him on the San Francisco ferry. It was luck, all right, but it turned out to be bad luck, like everything else that comes my way. He was all bundled up, with a muffler over his face, like he had the toothache. But he not only looked like Mr. Jerome—he walked like him. So I screwed around till I got a look at his face, and then I was sure. I figure he killed his brother, took the ring and the money, and then wrote that note to the police to fasten it onto me. I couldn't prove it on him, but by the time I had to go to settle accounts with him."

"He seemed cool enough then, though he was still out of breath from the chase he'd led me down the path to the cabin."

"I do know," he said. "That I don't wonder you're after me. But you wouldn't understand."

"He went over to the desk, and pulled open the drawer, me standing over him. I thought he was after a check book, and it made me mad to think he had the idea he could pay me off with money. Do you suppose money would give me back those ten years?"

"That's not what I want," I told him. "I want to do you to your name to me. I want to take your name away from you, the way you took mine. You 'most forgot me ever had a name, when you've been nothing but a number long enough. I want you to know what it's like—"

"The man doesn't live that can look me up!" he shouted. And then I saw what he was reaching for—not his check book, but his gun, that lay in the drawer.

"When I saw him get hold of the gun, I forgot everything. I grabbed my own gun out of my pocket, and shot him in the neck, before he could turn. The shock jarred his fingers loose from the gun, and it dropped back into the drawer. His arm dropped at his side, all limp-like.

"But if he reached for his pistol first, your shot was plain self-defense!" Peter exclaimed.

"Yeah!" Lynn snarled with abysmal sarcasm. "Just ask any jury to believe that, of a man that's already been under life sentence for murder. You've only my word for it, anyway. I don't see why you believe it, yourself!"

"I dunno," Peter said reflectively. "I just do. That's because I can't imagine that anybody would have such a zest for unadorned truth that he'd stick to one improbable story, even though he got 'life' for it, and then come around and tell another one, if it was a lie. Lying just doesn't seem to be your forte."

"It happened just like he says," Schnitzler interrupted with calm certainty.

"What do you know about it?" Lynn growled. "You'd better look out, grandpa, and not get mixed up in my trouble. I've got enough, as it is."

"I know," the old man announced with slow gravity, "because I saw it. It was just as he said. I heard Mr. Mortison come running down the path, and I squatted down under the window, afraid to leave for fear he might see me. Then I peeked up over the sill, and I saw Mr. Mortison reach for his pistol, and this other gentleman, he shot him."

"You saw it? You knew all the time who killed him? Then why in heaven's name didn't you say so?" Peter's questions tumbled over one another. "Do you mean to say you just sat back and let an innocent man be tried for murder?"

Schnitzler was unmoved by Peter's outburst.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The Tinies covered lots of ground as on the links they walked around. The whole bunch laughed at Clowny. He was funny as could be. He'd swing real hard, right at the ball, but wouldn't hit the thing at all. Said he, "How I can do that stunt, I really can't see."

"I swing as straight as I know how, but still I slice. Just watch me now." And then he took another drive, with more slice than before. "Aw, shucks," he cried, "I'm just no good. But I will smile and bear it. There is no need to get sore."

"That's one thing golfers should do. What do you profit when you're through?" The Travel Man then shouted, "Not a thing, my little lad. You have some good sense in your head. Some day 'twill help you get ahead." Then Clowny hit another drive that wasn't half as bad.

For almost two hours they all

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't. TEE-TIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

ANNUAL FISH TALE

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 16. The annual prize for fishing tales goes to five fishermen who tell the following of their recent motor boat fishing trip on the Gulf of Mexico near here: They harpooned a 16-foot ray fish and in the melee the rope became tangled in the propeller. The fish, the fishermen say, towed the boat for more than a mile before the rope could be cut. The party was composed of Dr. J. A. Hickaday and four friends.

Spinster Sisterhood Is Launched By Jayee Co-eds

The Sisterhood of Spinsters, one of the intriguing new girls' clubs of Santa Ana junior college, met last night in the home of Miss Betty Maloney on South Broadway. As a feature of the evening each Spinster brought a guest with her and several alumni Spinsters also were present.

Motives of the club were explained and the club uniform was shown. This consists of a green and white checkered apron and spectacles which are worn on Wednesday of each week when no spinster is allowed to hold any conversation with a man during dinner.

Ways of serving the college were discussed, as this organization is primarily a service club. After a short business meeting a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Officers of this unique club are Miss Betty Maloney, supreme Spinster; Miss Mary Todd Tate, sub-supreme Spinster; Miss Marguerite Lentz, keeper of the button box; Miss Marjorie Adams, mender of the "sox"; and Miss Margaret Wilcock, keeper of the quilt.

Spinsters present were Miss Betty Maloney, Miss Marjorie Adams, Miss Marian Parsons, Miss Helen Hendricks, Miss Ada Marie Hendricks, Miss Phyllis O'Connor, Miss Grace Marcher, Mrs. Velma Sundquist, adviser, and her guest, Miss Livingston, Miss Betty Wiswall, Miss Frances Vieira.

County Shriners Plan Irvine Park Supper And Dance

Enthusiastic response is being received to invitations mailed to every member of the Orange County Shrine club, to an old-time basket picnic to be held in Irvine park Friday evening, September 19. Those attending will be expected to take well-filled baskets for the needs of their own family groups, with the social committee to furnish coffee, sugar and cream and ice cream.

Afternoon hours will be given over to a program of games and sports beginning at 3:30 o'clock. The dinner hour will begin at 6 o'clock and continue until 8. Since this festivity has been planned primarily as a family affair with the enjoyment of children in mind, the social committee has asked every Shriner to make it a point to be present with his family circle, well-filled picnic baskets, and the determination to have a "grand and glorious" time.

The committee has completed arrangements for excellent musical entertainment, which will make the pavilion the center of interest for the after-dinner hours. That these plans are of wide general interest among county Shriners, has been indicated by the acceptances coming in to the office of Joseph P. Smith, secretary, where already the number of 125 has been reached. Every Shriner is asked to respond, as the committee wishes to know how to plan its purchases of coffee and ice cream.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Greenwall and daughter, Jeanne, were visitors in Huntington Beach, Monday evening.

Garden Fair Details Are Made Public

With arrangements completed for their annual garden fair which is to be an event of Thursday afternoon on the lovely grounds between the adjoining homes of Mrs. J. R. Moore and Mrs. Cynthia Davis in the 400 block on West Second street, members of the Ladies' Aid of the First Presbyterian church are expecting a large crowd to be present and share in the varied events.

A bazaar will be an interesting feature of both afternoon and evening, with booths prepared to sell flower bulbs, garden plants, foods of all kinds and fancy work. Ice cream will be served in the afternoon and a dinner will be in order at 5 o'clock in the evening.

A special feature of the evening will be a program arranged by Mrs. George Walker. Miss Philip Dowds will be presented in a group of readings, and Robert Forcey will give a number of violin solos. A playlet with Mrs. Guy Dowds and Mrs. George Walker as the cast, promises to be an enjoyable feature.

The public is cordially invited to share in the pleasures of the affair, and the sponsors are hoping to realize a neat sum for the Ladies Aid treasury. Last year over $200 was cleared at the garden fair.

THE PROHIBITION QUESTION WILL NOT DOWN

From all the states come the reports of agitation of the prohibition question. Politicians, especially of the Republican persuasion, find it a most embarrassing situation. Gladly would they dodge the issue. But there are propaganda forces at work on both sides which will not permit the question to be evaded. Between the militant "wets" and the militant "drys" we are in for a showdown, and the quicker it comes the better it will be all around. It is not wholesome that this question should obscure every other question of major importance. To hear the discussions and to read the reports in the newspapers one would think that there is nothing else of importance before the voters in the fall elections.

The puzzling factor in the whole situation is that there are embarrassments for the voters in the situation. In Ohio, for example, the senator sitting by appointment of the Governor, Roscoe McCullough, is a confirmed "dry," but a whole-hearted reactionary on every question before the American public. His opponent, Robert B. Buckley, is a highly respected lawyer, a man of much more progressive tendencies, but a pronounced "wet." What is a voter who believes in prohibition strongly and in progress equally strongly to do under such circumstances? Such a man, if he be a Republican, will have no difficulty in Nebraska, where he has Senator Norris to vote for. So the Democrat, if he be both a "dry" and a progressive, will have no difficulty in Montana with Senator Walsh as a candidate. But in most states the problem is not so simple.

This raises the question why it is that to be "dry" and to be reactionary so often go together. It would seem that the destructive social consequences of the liquor business ought to be evident to the man who is interested in better social conditions, and that the man who is wrought up about the terrible destructive consequences of the liquor traffic should be equally concerned about maladjustments in the social order which make for poverty, delinquency and crime. It is a strange contradiction which we have been unable to reconcile. It is indicative of a type of mind which is divided into compartments and cannot see things whole. Consistency would seem to demand that an open-minded man should find such matters in the same compartment.

Of course, it is too much to expect consistency along all lines. It is difficult for the average man to see more than one issue at the same time.

The proprietor of a famous English seaside resort, anxious to increase vacation patronage, has cut rates on days the sun doesn't shine. He wants every cloud to have a silver lining.

THE RACE FOR AMERICA'S CUP

The races for the America's cup are now going on. The English-speaking world is interested. The radio is carrying the progress of each race to every village and hamlet in England and America. The cup has been here since 1851, and has been held against foreign contestants in ten races, beginning in 1871. The contestant this year is Sir Thomas Lipton, the only contestant since 1899. Beginning in that year with the Shamrock I, he has engaged, including the one now in progress, in five successive attempts to take the America's cup. The high sportsmanship of Sir Thomas in the face of successive defeats has won the hearts of the men and women of the American sporting world, and there would be little unfavorable feeling were he to carry off the cup in the races now going on. At an expense of over $10,000,000, Sir Thomas has been striving to win the cup which has been in the possession of the New York Yacht Club since 1851.

In a world in which the profit motive has been the apparent incentive to all competitive interest, it is well to note just such events as this. The cup for which the Shamrock is contending is not a thing of any special value, but the sentiment that clusters about it makes it a prize for which a man like Sir Thomas Lipton is willing to squander a fortune. We suspect there are those who would say that in a period of depression and unemployment the waste of so much money in a boat race comes near to being a crime. This has all the aspects of self-evident truth. But there is another side to it all. Wholesome sport is not only a good thing for men, but it is a necessary thing. It is wholesome to see men in competition for a prize which represents a sentiment rather than a great money profit. Amateur football and professional baseball have come to be a part of America's play life; and while there are those who feel that altogether too much money is being squandered in these sports, the vast majority of us still hold to the truth of the old maxim, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

Men need diversion. The wear and tear of life today in our modern rustling world is terrific. We should be the last to frown upon any avenue of escape from the nervous wrack of our commercial and economic age. The races, now going on off Newport, R. I., serve to turn men's thoughts away from the purely commercial and economic to the diverting exercises of wholesome sport. At any rate the interest of many millions of Americans are turning these days toward the races for the America's cup. May the best boat win; but we shall not grieve overmuch if Sir Thomas Lipton wins after the fifth sportsmanlike attempt.

SHOULD SCIENCE TAKE A HOLIDAY?

Sir Arthur Keith, one of England's great scientists, discusses this question in the last Sunday edition of the New York Times. The claim is made by some that science has moved so rapidly in the last few years as to loosen us from all our moorings of the past. There are any number of people who do not know where they are at, and what they are to believe. All the inherent beliefs of our childhood have been made untenable. The simple faith of the fathers can no longer be held by those who are familiar with the progress of modern science.

Sir Arthur Keith meets all the objections to the continuance of scientific research by pointing out the innumerable benefits that modern scientific discovery has brought to human life. In the field of medicine and surgery alone, science has added immeasurably to the length and comfort of human life. Man's daily life has been enriched in every way through scientific discoveries. In what sphere, then, inquires Sir Arthur, shall we arrest scientific research? There is only one answer to that question, and it is the answer that Sir Arthur gives. The human mind is curious. It will not rest satisfied with the known. It must pioneer and adventure in every department of life. To arrest it in its quest is to build a futile dam against the surging movements of the human mind. There are disquieting aspects to the situation, but we shall have to adjust ourselves to the facts of life and the universe.

Babe Ruth will soon open a haberdashery store on Broadway. The sign on the window will probably say something to the effect that Babe's stuff is best in the long run.

"DOING GOOD"

The Wiedboldt Foundation has prepared a "first aid to givers," in the form of a book on the precepts of giving. Mr. Arthur J. Todd of the foundation staff, one of the editors of the book says:

It would sometimes seem that mortal man does nothing so badly as his attempt to do good. If man is endowed with a definite instinct to do good, that alone, judging by its results, is sufficient cause for doubting the value of mere instinct as a guide to civilized social life.

There is some truth in Mr. Todd's statement, but he exaggerates. The so-called "instinct" to do good is not entirely a failure. The failures are obvious.

With economic independence has come a revolution against those who go about doing good. Their paternalism is scorned. So many times there has been in them a self-righteousness which has been obnoxious. But the successful doer of good has had none of these faults. His deeds were so well executed as not to be obvious and to cause one to forget that the man or woman who was doing good with finesse belonged to the same ilk as the other kind.

The world can take much help from the humble man; the one who first of all sees himself as struggling upward and not standing on a high platform, pitying the rest of mankind, even though pulling them up. There is an art in "doing good." The spirit of friendship rather than patronage points the way to success.

The Burial of Andree

—New York Times—

Those who are reading again the Aeneid in this bimillennial year of Vergil's birth will think of Andree when they refresh their memory of the fate of Palinurus the pilot. Lost in the sea after days of struggle with the surges, he at last reached shore only to perish there, his bones lying unburied. Of this fate Aeneas did not know till he encountered the sad spirit of the lost pilot wandering on the shores of the Styx, where waited "unfunerated people," the "souls of heroes discharged from earth's duties, valiant of heart," matrons and men, boys and unmarried girls—many as are the leaves that fall in the forest in the first cold of Autumn—stretching their ghostly hands toward the further shore in yearning to be ferried across. But none might Charon bear unless their bones had found a resting-place; for a hundred years must they wander ere they might be admitted to the longed-for waters.

The prayer of Palinurus was that Aeneas would sprinkle earth upon his bones, or see that heaven's deities were turned aside and so rescue him from his woes. Happily, that assurance was given to Palinurus as it has come to Andree after his long Arctic vigil:

Hear and remember my words to solace thy hard lot—that far and wide through their cities, pursued by the portents of heaven, they that live near thy bones shall appear thy dust, shall establish a tomb and shall bear to the tomb their oblation; so that the place shall preserve thy name forever.

While we do not think of Andree's spirit as under any such doom of years, we do think with satisfaction that if he could know with what interest the cities far and wide over the earth await his last words and with what pride his own people, neighboring to the North, bear his bones back for burial in his own land, where he will be remembered forever, he would be joyful of spirit, as was Palinurus when his anxieties were dispelled by the words of Aeneas.

The Truth

—Pasadena Star News—

Too many persons sneer at politics as being something contaminating and unworthy to have the attention of good citizens. Politics is just what the good citizens of this country make it, or permit it to be. If the good citizens assert themselves as they should, politics will be clean and on a high order of morality, honesty and efficiency. But if good citizens shirk their bounden duty—as, alas, far too many of them do shirk—and if these good citizens permit unscrupulous politicians and equally unscrupulous voters, constituting a minority of the electorate, to control politics and to decide elections, then indeed is politics of a low order. Good citizens should sneer at politics as being unclean and unfit to have his or her attention. The good citizens, in railing at unclean politics, is indicting himself for evading his duty by failing to be active in politics and failing to aid in keeping politics clean.

Serenading Under Difficulties!

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

THE KEY TO A MYSTERY

The French Institute has discovered that all really great writing is done with a steel pen.

Although I've always done my best
The lyric muse to fetter,
It must be honestly confessed
That Keats wrote rather better.
My odes about this earthly zone,
And ether draped environs
Have never been, I freely own,
As good as Mr. Byron's.

P. Shelley's works are rhymed delight
And people love to quote 'em,
But things like these I cannot write
As well as Percy wrote 'em.
Nor does the verse that I turn out
Through people's minds run rippling,
And travel all the world about
Like that of Mr. Kipling.

This thing is a puzzle was to me
Whose key I could not seize on,
Until last night I chanced to see
A piece that gave the reason.
These widely celebrated men,
When inspirations gripped 'em,
Wrote out their poems with a pen,—
While I have always typed 'em.

The chance for fame has passed me by,
And I could never grab it,
Because through all my life-time I
Have had the typing habit.
But though I've penned no noble rhyme
Of great and heroic action,
At least I've saved a lot of time,
And that's SOME satisfaction.

A New Principle of Finance

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER
and WADDILL CATCHINGS

There is due the United States from foreign debtors, private and public, a net balance of fully 16 billion dollars. These debts cannot be paid, in full, except with commodities. The debtors can not even begin to pay with commodities, until the United States has an unfavorable balance of trade. That is to say, no liquidation of the debt is possible until our imports exceed our exports. But every year, for a generation past, we have successfully blocked that means of payment.

"It may be true," says one of our bankers, "that these debts can never be paid; but they are, nevertheless, perfectly sound debts."

That appears to be a new principle of finance. At any rate, Sam Witham does not yet see how he can do sound business for the Sandwich Center Bank by granting new loans to debtors who have no prospect of paying old loans. Surely, the principle does not change merely because the debts are huge, and the debtors are far away.

Even so, it is said, we can afford to lose a few billion dollars, if thereby we can gain the good will of the world.

But we can gain good will that way? Enabling any one to run up debts which he cannot pay usually creates ill will. However grateful a self-respecting debtor may be at first, he soon becomes resentful. He never forgives his benefactor for doing him such a favor.

When, on the other hand, any one advances money or goods and sets up conditions under which the debtor can prosper and pay his debts, his gratitude is lasting.

Now, nations are only aggregates of human beings. They have the same resentments and the same grudges. Already the United States has incurred the ill will of some nations by putting them deeper and deeper into debt.

We should either enable our foreign debtors to begin paying their old debts with commodities, or else have it understood that further loans to these debtors are not business but philanthropy—misguided philanthropy at that!

How much are we willing to sacrifice in wealth and in good will for the privilege of being the world's bankers? At least, we should not let the glamor of such a prospect blind us to the cost
